Sunday's Auto Accident

On Sunday morning last, while Mr. John Armbruster was starting out to attend church service, in his motor car, and was turning from First street onto Meridian road, his car collided with a Pontiac coach which was coming from the south.

The coach was being driven at what is said to have been a high rate of speed. Mr. Armbruster, on seeing the approaching car, had slowed down to less than eight miles an hour as he turned onto the Meridian road.

The occupants of the coach were taken over to the Armbruster home, where the injured ones were attended to by Dr. Walton. It was found the two lady occupants of the coach were badly injured—Miss Laura Albright of Edmonton had her arm broken in two places, and Mrs. Moss Kelly, also of Edmonton, was thrown thru the left window and suffered cuts about the face, and a broken nose. Mr. Armbruster was injured in the chest by being thrown against the steering wheel of his car. The two guests in the Pontiac, Amedeo Ruston and Henry Rosenmeyer, both residents of the City, escaped with a few bruises.

The wrecked cars were taken to local repair shops—Mr. Armbruster's Oakland to the Service Garage, and the Pontiac coach to Mr. Pidgeon's Garage. Each requires extensive overhauling to make it ready for the road again.

Some improvements were made last fall in the roadway where the accident occurred. A culvert was installed on the west side, making it a rather sharp turn from First St. to Meridian Rd.

SAFETY AND COMFORT

Here is what the new Chevrolet looks like at the first public showings now being held across Canada. There are also body types, the five-window coupe at the upper left being an addition to the line. Below is the standard sedan which shows the large, roomy effect achieved by lengthening the wheelbase to 140 inches. Wire wheels are standard equipment. Upper right shows the changed front view, the higher radiator, the chrome-plated bumper which unites between the headlights, and the new lower mounted lower left headlamp. Prices of the new Chevrolet are lower than those at which the 1930 models were introduced.

Too much ACID

Many people, two hours after eating, suffer indigestion as they call it. It is usually excess acid. Correct it with an alkali. The best way, the quick, harmless and efficient way, is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained for 50 years the standard with physicians. One spoonful in water neutralizes many times its volume in stomach acids, and at once. The symptoms, such as heartburn, gas, heartburn, etc., will disappear in five minutes.

You will never use crude methods when you know this better method. And you will never suffer from excess acid when you prove out this easy relief. Please do that—for your own sake—now.

Be sure to get the genuine, prescribed by doctors for conditions due to excess acid. It is always a liquid; it cannot be made in tablet form. Look for the name Phillips' and the word genuine in red.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON JANUARY 11

THE CHILDHOOD OF JESUS

Golden Text: "Jesus advanced in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and men."—Luke 2:52. Lesson: Luke 2.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 11:1-9.

Explanations and Comments

The Development of Jesus, verses 46 and 52.—With these words compare and contrast the words by John the Baptist, the last words of our lesson last week. Like every one who has ever lived, Jesus began His life as a helpless infant, and like all normal children His powers developed gradually. As a child he grew physically and waned (grew) strong; as he increased in wisdom and stature, so he grew spiritually, in favor with God and men. He had a gradual development until He attained a perfect manhood. "At each stage he was perfect for that stage, but the perfection of a child is inferior to the perfection of a man; it is the difference between innocence and perfect holiness."—Alfred Plummer.

"You know the Child Jesus at once by a halo round his brow. There was no glory in His real life to mark Him; we know this, for in after years his brethren thought his fame strange, and his townsmen rejected Him. Gradually and gently He woke to consciousness of life and its manifold meanings; gradually, and not at once, He embraced the sphere of human duties, and he woke to His earthly relationships one by one—the Son, the Brother, the Citizen, the Master. It is a very deep and beautiful and precious truth that the Eternal Son had a human and progressive childhood."

An Incident in the Childhood of Jesus, verses 41-43.—Before the law, Joseph was the father of Jesus, and so Luke speaks of Joseph and Mary as the parents of Jesus, and notes that every year at the feast of the Passover they went to Jerusalem. Three times in this chapter Joseph is referred to as the father of Jesus. Dr. Garvie explains that Joseph is rightly called one of Jesus' parents, for in the home he provided for him, filled a parent's place and played a parent's part. To him God committed a trust and a task.

Women were not obliged to attend the Passover, but Mary accompanied Joseph on his annual pilgrimage, and when Jesus was twelve years old He went with them. As a "Son of the law" He was subject to its obligations respecting feasts, fasts and the like.

Unknown to them, Jesus tarried behind in Jerusalem, and they went a day's journey toward Nazareth before they missed Him, for they supposed He was with kindfolk or acquaintances in the same caravan.

Joseph and Mary spent part of one day hunting for their boy in the caravan, another day in returning to Jerusalem, and on the third day they found Him in the temple. There were rooms off from the temple courts where teachers, famous Doctors of Law, were wont to meet their pupils, expound the law, and answer questions. Here, among the teachers and pupils, Joseph and Mary found the lost boy, listening and asking questions which showed such understanding that all were amazed.

Mary, too, was astonished. Dr. A. B. Bruce suggests that her astonishment points to some contrast between a previous quiet, reserved manner of Jesus and His present bearing, which was a sudden flashing out of His inner life.

Canadian Method Approved

Doctors of Europe Commend Idea of Expert Anesthetists

Canadian anesthetists are now recognized the world over and particularly in Europe, Dr. Pierre Z. Macosmo, delegate of the Association des Medecins de Langue Francaise, from Montreal to the Paris convention of La Societe de Chirurgie Francaise, stated upon his return from Europe.

Important technical knowledge had resulted from the convention held in Paris, Dr. Macosmo said, but the most pleasing and the most interesting was the commendation of the Canadian method of making use of specialist anesthetists. The services of these experts are often used but the presence of nurses and internes is always considered as necessary in other countries of the world.

A Great Asthma Remedy. Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy has never been advertised by extravagant statements. Its claims are conservative indeed, when judged by the benefits which it performs. Expect real relief and permanent benefits when you buy this remedy and you will not have cause for disappointment. It gives permanent relief in many cases where other so-called remedies have utterly failed.

To Solve Root Origin

British Scientist Goes To Africa To Discover People Of Root Sex

Dr. Arthur Terrance, of London, England, a fellow of the Royal Society of Great Britain, has announced plans for an expedition to February to Africa, in which he said he hoped to determine the origin of the race.

"We will try to reach a people of dual sex we believe live near Lake Chad," he said. "My interest first was aroused when I encountered some of these peculiar people in Nigeria in 1924."

"I tried at that time to reach Lake Chad but was forced to turn back when advance members of my party were killed by a fierce tribe of desert nomads. I was killed again in 1926 by desert storms."

"It is my belief that the original human being was a person of dual sex. The influence of climate, the necessity of making a living and the need of looking after children, in my point of view, caused the division of the first human beings into two sexes. We hope to prove the long existence of these peoples by unearthing skeletons."

BIG CORPORATION TO BE CREATED TO AID FARMERS

Regina, Sask.—Before an interested audience of fully 5,000 people here, Premier Bennett delivered a message of hope to the people of Western Canada. Mr. Bennett's address was mainly directed to the farmers of the prairies. As a westerner himself, he declared, he was keenly alive to their problems and was determined to solve them and at the same time promote the national interests of Canada as a whole.

He reviewed the activities of his government since assuming office in August, the steps taken to relieve unemployment, providing funds to speed up public works, the increased protection afforded the Canadian producer by the tariff revision, and the stand taken by the government at the Imperial Conference.

Financial difficulties of the farmers of Canada will be met by the creation of a private corporation, in which banks, transportation companies, industrial concerns, insurance and mortgage companies will be shareholders, said Mr. Bennett.

The primary object of the proposed Farm Finance Corporation is to assist farmers now engaged wholly or largely in the production of grain to launch out into mixed farming.

"In this regard," said Mr. Bennett, "the suggestion made a few weeks ago by Mr. E. W. Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, is to be commended. A private organization having as shareholders the transportation companies, banks, industrial enterprises, insurance and mortgage corporations with a reasonable capital used as a revolving loan fund, will meet the necessities of the situation.

"A class of business will be transacted in which the banks cannot engage, and local supervision will ensure a minimum of risk. In the United States where the loan capital was $8,000,000 the loans of a similar organization over a considerable period of time were but $27,000."

The fact that the marketing of wheat at present prices would still leave many farmers in difficulties called for the attention of the government, said the premier. The government was therefore going to assist the provinces in providing relief.

"No citizen of this country," he said, "must suffer for lack of food, clothing, shelter or fuel. I would not have the wheat growers think it is our desire or intention to grant them more favorable treatment than any other class in the community will receive. We do not offer them charity for they do not want charity. What we offer them is that measure of relief which the circumstances of the case so fully warrant."

While fully alive to the immediate difficulties, the Federal Government was also occupied in finding permanent markets for Canadian farm products. These efforts were directed along three lines, protection of the home market, extension of trade within the empire and revision of most favored nation treaties with foreign countries.

"Our minister of Japan, Hon. K. H. Macdonald," he said, "in I hope, at this very hour on his way to China to discuss with the government of that great country the purchase of millions of bushels of our wheat. Nor will the government hesitate, if necessary, to assist by providing credit facilities and by other means in the power the establishment of an invaluably valuable channel of trade."

With European countries speeding up their grain production it was obvious Canada would have to look to the Orient for a market. Canada had the goodwill of the Orient and the government was prepared to capitalize it.

With regard to his negotiations with France, Mr. Bennett said the existing duty on wheat was practically prohibitive. Since his meeting with the French government the government had been determined, but despite this he had advised that France would guarantee to buy a substantial quantity of Canadian wheat.

Canada's Farm Loans

Over Seven Million Disbursed Within Two Years

Ottawa, Ont.—At the end of the present fiscal year on March 31 next, when the organization will have been functioning a little less than two years, the Canadian Farm Loan Board will have disbursed nearly $7,000,000 in loans to farmers in six provinces of the Dominion, according to Dr. J. D. McLean, chairman of the board. Up to the present the average loan has been a little over $2,000, and it is pointed out by Dr. McLean that half of the $4,400,000 loaned up to the end of September, the government has securities in the form of lands and buildings valued at about $14,000,000.

St. Xavier, Que.—Six of the nine children of Henri Labelle suffered a terrible death amid the flames of an early morning fire that destroyed their home in this mountain village. Attend Funeral Of Comrade

Members Of Crew Of R-100 Honor Granville Watts

London, England.—Members of the crew of the stryke R-100 attended the funeral of Granville Watts, who had declined an offer to become a member of the crew of the R-101 on that vessel's ill-fated air voyage to India, which ended in disaster and the loss of 34 lives. Watts was not involved with the stryke's condition. He was fatally injured in a motorcycle collision recently.

Watts had been on board the old R-100 when she crashed on Mount Ararat; on the R-32 when she broke her moorings in a storm and drifted for thirty hours; and on the R-100 when she crossed the Atlantic to visit Canada four months ago.

BAD NARROW ESCAPE

Miss Winifred Spencer, British aristocrat, while attempting to break all previous records by flying from London, England, to Cape Town in four days, had a narrow escape from death when her plane crashed into the sea off Botswana's coastline recently. The plane was salvaged and hoisted into port at Botswana's coastline. Photo shows Miss Spencer posing from wreckage after it was hoisted ashore.

PREPARE FOR STRUGGLE OVER FREIGHT RATES

Winnipeg, Man.—For a freight rates battle of the future, Manitoba farmers today are lining up a solid front. It will be an agrarian body that first again drew at Ottawa for a suitable rail and ocean freight route via the Hudson Bay route to world markets.

Prepared to struggle with a foe, designated as "big interests" in the east, United Farmers of Manitoba are seeking signatures of every farmer in the province to a petition which will be presented to the Dominion government.

The part of Churchill, in her north Manitoba, will mean a saving of "millions of dollars" to western farmers if the Crow's Nest route of grain rates are secured, if ocean freight rates are placed "on a comparable basis with ocean rates at Montreal," and if a fair basis of rates on general merchandise, such as lumber, wire, window glass, and paint, from Churchill to all southern Manitoba points is secured, says the petition. But the U.F.M. recognizes opposition.

"Powerful financial interests, centered in the competitive ports of Montreal, Quebec, Saint John and Halifax," will oppose the west's demand for a low grain rate basis, equal to the Crow's Nest rates, the petition anticipates. "Large shipping firms at the Atlantic seaboard will contest any move to effect low ocean rates from Churchill."

The farm body also will ask for a "substantial reduction in the present prohibitive marine insurance rate" from the Hudson Bay Port, of 5 per cent, "which means approximately 5 cents per bushel on wheat." The present insurance rate would alone kill the successful operation of the route, so far as any financial benefit to Manitoba and Saskatchewan farmers is concerned, asserts the petition.

"Maintenance of this excessive marine insurance rate and the maintenance of high ocean rates from Churchill is the aim and object of powerful transportation, financial and manufacturing interests centered in eastern Canada—their determination being to arrange through-transportation rates on our export farm products and our import foreign necessities, on such a high basis as will equal the present cost of transportation via the ports of Montreal, Saint John or Halifax."

Once the part of Churchill is opened, the petition declares, it will be "many years" before freight rates are changed. Thus, farmers of the west must present their demands to Ottawa in good time.

"The fact that legislation will never be nearer to Manitoba than it is at Churchill, is full of significance to us, and it is, therefore, exceedingly important that we join in this well directed effort to increase the prosperity and purchasing power of the producers of the prairie provinces," the farm body's petition urges.

Baldwin's New Year's Wish

Wish That Labor Government May Come To Speedy and Uninterrupted End

London, England.—Mr. Stanley Baldwin's "best and most cheerful political New Year's wish for 1931" is: "May the present government come to a speedy and uninterrupted end," he wrote recently in a 1931 message of greeting to the people of Great Britain.

In his message he outlined Conservative plans for remedying economic conditions with an emergency tariff for the protection of manufacturers, a guaranteed price and a guaranteed market for British wheat and a scheme for the development of the pipe trade.

"When the general election comes," he wrote, "and I am of the opinion that it won't be long despite the Liberal plot to keep the Liberals in power, we shall make an immediate beginning on a policy to help the process of national recovery."

Forbes-Pinchbeck

A quiet wedding was celebrated in Edmonton on Saturday last, January 2nd, by the Rev. Thomas Tait, at the Parsonage, 9911 31st St., when Miss Millicent Pinchbeck, second daughter of Mr. Edmund Pinchbeck, Spruce Grove, was united in marriage to Mr. James Fraser Forbes, son of the late Mr. Justice Forbes, and Mrs. Forbes, of Prince Albert, Saskatchewan.

The bride has been until recently the teacher at St. John school, Winterburn. Mr. Forbes has been the popular manager at the Searle elevator at Spruce Grove for several years. The happy couple have taken up their residence on First Ave. East. A delegation of young men of the district surrounded the couple at their new home, when the bridegroom gave the bridesmaids' captain a handsome dinner on which to make merry.

Sporting Notes

The next sport to engage local public attention is skiing. An Edmonton sportsman who makes frequent trips to Stony has given Mr. Anderson an order for a pair of seven-foot hickory skis, the sportsman having hopes of organizing a club here. He has been making a survey of hills in this district which may be suitable for ski-jumping contests.

Stony Plain and District

Mr. G. U. Singer resented his duties at the local bank on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Lambert and family entertained, on Sunday, at their home Dr. and Mrs. Herman Wood and family; Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Anderson and family of Edmonton; Messrs. Joe Barnhouse, Gus Barth, Val Kulak.

Under the auspices of Stony Plain Lodge, L. O. O. M., a concert and playlet will be given in Mason Hall on the evening of Friday, Feb. 6th, with local talent.

Mr. Tony Tyrkalo hosted a party of friends to Edmonton, on Tuesday, to participate in the celebration there of the Russian New Year.

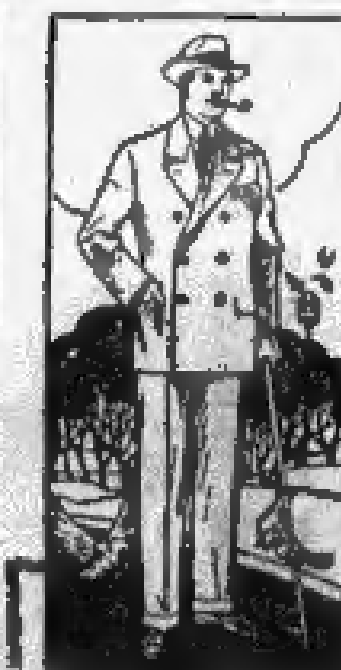

A meeting of Stony Plain U. F. Local will be held this (Thurs.) Eve. Jan. 8, in the Royal Parlor. There will be an election of officers.

The officials of Stony Plain Lodge, L. O. O. M., responsible for arranging the New Year's frolic and dance are to be congratulated on the huge success the affair proved to be. Along with the local contingent of dancers, about sixty couples were present from Edmonton. The committee had spared no pains to have all enjoy themselves, and the orchestra was kept playing till 3.30 a.m.

If you are having visitors during the present holidays, or are visiting away yourself, drop in at The Sun office and tell us about it, or send the item thru the postoffice. Remember one half the world is interested in the other half's movements.

Before the P. M.

The only case before Magistrate Williams on Tuesday was the conclusion of the case against Bakas. The accused was charged with permitting a fire to escape from his premises, contrary to the provisions of the Prairie Fire Ordinance. After written argument had been presented by counsel for the accused, the case against Bakas was dismissed and the costs were taxed against the complainant. Geo. J. Bryan appeared for the accused.

Hockey News.

Our Senior hockeyists had a strong bunch of players to contend with at last Sunday's game. The opposing team was the Mortville Flying Frenchmen, and they lived up to the name, as the kind of hockey they play is of no mean order. Stony scored the first goal, and comment was made at the time why they didn't follow the usual course pursued—play a defensive game and hold the score at that.

The score was tied at the end of the third period, and another period was played. The score stood 4 all at the end of the game.

Stony will meet the Flying Frenchmen again on Wednesday next, Jan. 14, up at Mortville.

Another Hockey League

Another hockey league in which Stony players will participate is now being formed; this one to include our popular Junior team.

The other clubs are to be: Winterburn, Callahan, Onaway, and a schedule of the games to be played is now being planned.

The proposition was discussed Tuesday evening, between our Junior's manager and the Onaway manager, when the latter was here with his team.

Junior Hockey.

All our hockey fans spent New Year's night up at Onaway, watching our husky Junior team try to beat that town's Senior Haymakers. The play had not been going long when every Stony man's heartbeats quickened when the first goal scored was put in by Clarence Anderson.

This heartened the Jammers to the extent that they put up a magnificent battle, and fairly rained the shots on their opponents' goal, but these were stopped in grand style by Onaway's goal defenders.

The game had many noticeable features, one of which was the way Stony's goalie would be caught laying on the ice, replying peacefully in one end of the goal, while an opposing player would sneak up and score with the puck at the end of the net while wasn't using.

Another noticeable feature was the disposition of the goal umpires. Opening the second period, when the teams changed ends, the umpires failed to do so, with the result that two goals Stony's players say they scored in this period were not seen by the Onaway umpire at the Onaway goal.

Those who think they did not see a first-class game, can have their entrance fee refunded on applying to the Sporting Editor.

The only near-sight to mar the proceedings was in the return trip, when young Goosie got lost, coming home in the Oysterman, arriving in Stony in time for breakfast.

Tuesday's Game

Onaway's team engaged sticks with our Junior at the local rink Tuesday, and another good game was witnessed. Each team produced a new goalie, the visitors naming Johnny Leffroy winning their net, while Stony had Eddie Clarke at its goal. The visitors brought down a goal crowd of spectators, who kept up a running fire of comments as the game progressed. They net scored the first goal for Onaway, but the second one which went to Onaway's credit it was inadvertently scored by a Stonyite. One or two of the home players seemed to lack the pep shown at the game last week, but the rest of our players were up in the collar all the time on the ice, and deserve great credit for a good showing made against much heavier and experienced players. John T. Miller refereed in a very satisfactory manner.

Final score: Onaway 3; Stony 1.

By 10 December 34 more grain had been delivered to ships at West Saint John than during the entire month of December, 1929, and this traffic has led to record that at least seven for Mediterranean and other European ports, according to information gathered at Canadian Pacific Railway headquarters. In addition to grain at seaboard, 1,444,000 bushels were in transit at mid-December, with further orders coming in daily.

Winners already of two Dominion championships, the first all team of the Canadian Pacific Railway's Toronto freight office added further laurels to their crown by taking, in face of stiff opposition, the silver challenge shield of the company's eastern team championship, and a week later journey to Winnipeg where they captured a third Dominion trophy by defeating Western Stars, winners of the western team championship, by 26 points. Winning team was: W. T. Warren, (captain), A. T. Corbin, R. H. Brail, C. W. Collier, W. J. Turb and C. W. Murray (separate).

By the throwing of a switch in the Saskatchewan power house of the Saskatchewan Government Power Commission a new era for many towns in central Saskatchewan was recently introduced. This act marked the beginning of the new high tension power line in Shellbrook and the lighting up of that town and of a number of intervening towns by electricity supplied from the central electric station in Shellbrook. About 200 miles of power lines will be functioning shortly and a hundred towns will be effectively lighted and supplied with power.

In the first nine months of 1930, more than 200,000 pounds of mail were carried by air mail service in Canada. One-half of the service operates out of Montreal. Two new services are projected. One will cover the route from Amos to Stouffville, nearly entire distance in Northern Quebec, and the second from the Peace River to North Vermilion, in the North-West Territories. There are 800 aircraft flying in Canada, with 717 pilots, of whom 400 are commercial. There are 15 air harbors.

CHAPTER VIII

"Well," said John Maxwell, as he regarded his wife across the tea cups that night at supper, "I've got you good dead chalked up to my credit. I've arranged to keep that boy out of the vampire's clutches for one day anyhow."

Mary smiled, and with a practiced hand dropped three lumps of sugar into his tea.

"How'd you do it, Johnny?"

"I was forced to admit that the credit's not all mine. You remember Simon Bartlett, don't you?"

"That dead old man who lunched here one day, and who's so devoted to Gay and Nick?"

John nodded, stirring his tea thoughtfully.

"They spent the first week of their honeymoon at his camp, you know. He thinks he owns them! Well, he blew in this morning unexpectedly—had some business with me; but after lunch he came back again. Walked in and closed the door—mopped his streaming brow, and remarked that he wanted to borrow my paying teller."

"For how long?"

"Just over Monday—the holiday. Gay and the babies are going back with him tomorrow for a visit. Glad of it. If ever a girl needed a change of—something—"

"I know all about Gay. I've been there this afternoon; but she didn't know that Nick was going with them. I think she was worrying at leaving him."

"Old Simon saw that. He was going to hire Sam Hilton to take them over; but it occurred to him that if Nick could get off for Friday and Saturday, he could drive the car, and at the same time keep out of mischief."

"You don't mean, Johnny, that Mr. Bartlett said anything about the—the vampire?"

Mary's eyes opened so wide that her husband laughed.

"Isn't he ever heard the word, my dear; but he knows the breed. However, Simon was discreet. He merely hinted that though Nick had made some engagement with his new neighbors, he thought the matter could be arranged. And I said: 'It'll be arranged if I have to go back to the days of my youth and be paying teller myself while he's away.'"

"And what did Mr. Bartlett say to that?"

John smiled in reminiscence. "He merely grinned—at first. Then he said: 'Nick's a good boy, John Maxwell.'"

"Too good to spend a day in company with a pair of innocent, blue eyes?" I asked; and he replied: 'Ain't I been tell that opportunity makes the thief? They're times, John Maxwell, when it ain't a bad idea to remove the opportunity. I guess we understand each other, don't we?'"

"We do," said I. "The entire book is at your disposal in such a cause."

"I ain't asking for the book," said Simon. "All I want is your paying teller."

Mary laughed, and commented: "We're not old dear; but I wonder how he—well, caught on so quickly. Gay's too fond to have given him a hint, even if her fears were aroused, which I very much doubt."

"She wouldn't have to hint much, Mary. That old man is as shrewd as a hawk. The moment word would have set him thinking, and he always thinks in some purpose. Anyway, it will do Gay good to have a change. What did you think of her?"

Mary Maxwell removed a slice of bread from the electric toaster, buttered it temptingly and passed it to her husband before she said: "Gay looked lived, of course; but what young mother isn't tired at times? Whooping cough lasts forever, and both babies had it, she was busy packing, so I produced my telephone and told her to forget I was there except when she found something that needed a stitch. Her mending had piled up fearfully, poor child—but I accomplished everything before I left—even that pinned-up patch! She said I was as good as a mother!"

"I don't doubt you were, my dear. Did Gay seem happy about going?"

"Almost. She said that Mr. Bartlett was like a breath of cool air; but she was homesick at leaving Nick. I'm glad he's going. It won't be so hard to my good-lips when she's once away."

"Did she mention the Holidays?"

"Only casually, because she was calling there the other day. She spoke of how beautifully the women stage. That came up when I mentioned the grand plans. I'm sorry she stage, Johnny. Nick's so fond of music."

"Do you know," said John Maxwell unexpectedly, "I believe we're all making much ado about nothing."

Nick was so happy as a cat let loose at the idea of going to State Line. I heard him tell Simon that the Holidays would probably be relieved that he couldn't go with them! Anyhow, Mary, the boy's not consoled, and that'll protect him in some extent. It hasn't yet occurred to him that Mrs. Holliday might take pleasure in his company."

But if Nick was oblivious of the fact that Angela Holliday regarded him as one bright spot in what she was pleased to call "the provincialism of Bakerville," the lady's husband was not so blind. It was the next morning, that, quite without intention, he came upon her standing by the window, watching the departure of her neighbors. Gay was on the front seat of Sam Hilton's comfortable Packard; while Uncle Ben, surrounded by bags, boxes, and babies, brought up the rear. Mrs. Holliday started at her husband's step; then turning, remarked languidly: "The party is off."

"So I perceive."

Holliday moved nearer, and with his usual cynical expression, watched Nick stoop to lock the door, run down the path like a boy, and take the place beside his wife.

"Quite as families," Holliday remarked.

Angela shrugged. Straps, which had once been an affection with her, were now as natural as the breath of life.

"What an impossible old man," she said, referring to Uncle Ben.

"But a far from impossible young man," rejoined her husband. "Good-looking—well set-up—and not uninteresting. I advise you—"

She wheeled on him angrily.

"I'm sick and tired of your advice! I can't even look out my windows without your spying on me! I heard how stealthily you came in. You thought you'd catch me napping—good-bye or something. You're the most jealous—"

He interrupted her with an impatient laugh.

"No, my dear, I'm not jealous. I got over that stage of the game years ago. But when I occasionally take enough interest in my wife to care for her—the live into a woman. Some day, if you're not careful, that looked-haired freak you've got in the kitchen will overtake you."

"What if she does? I don't want your warnings."

"But I shall continue to give them." He crossed the room, verified and closed the door. "We'll have this out right now. I bought this place to keep you out of mischief. I supposed there was no one here sufficiently acquainted to appeal to you; but I might have known better. You'd find them anywhere. If I took you to a decent hotel some nation would have up and back in the light of your innocent eyes. It would make no difference to you if his skin were black, or white, or yellow, so long as he was snuggled at your breast."

"How long are you going to stand there and taunt me?" interrupted Angela, with innocent calm.

"Taunt you? Well, perhaps I have. I apologize; and admit that on the day your taste in victims has been—less—praiseworthy."

"It was her face to laugh unpleasantly."

"That always. But when I married you."

Hardened cynic though he was, Holliday wheeled as he replied: "Possibly you are right; but at least, I was not 'yellow.' I think you'll admit that I've played the game. I stuck by you when you'd estranged me from the only friend I ever cared for. If he'd married you I'd have got you your freedom—somehow—but—"

"If you think the decision lay in his hands," she broke in furiously, "you are mistaken. I wouldn't have married him if he'd been the best man left in the world. If you hadn't been the most jealous sort of a jealous fool—"

He moved a step nearer, and she stopped.

"It's not customary then, for a man to feel disturbed when he finds his wife in the arms of one he had thought a friend?"

She made no answer, and he continued: "As for the Ashley affair—"

Save for two spots that were not nature's handiwork, her face went white.

"Stop! I shan't listen! If you say a word more I'll—"

She had covered her eyes with her hands and was shaking queerly. Her husband looked at her, but not a line of emotion crossed his face.

Railways in the Air

Switzerland Building One Up to the Higher Than Anywhere Else

Switzerland can already boast that it possesses the highest railway in Europe—the Jungfrau line, which goes up 11,500 feet. But it isn't satisfied with this—a new railway connecting St. Moritz with the Piz Bernina is now to be built. It will attain an altitude of 13,000 feet. At present there are only six railways in the world which go higher than the Jungfrau line. When the Piz Bernina is built there will be only four railways in the world to beat it in altitude. The Peruvian Central Railway is the present holder of the world's record. At one point it reaches 15,000 feet—just thirty-one feet more than is attained by the runner-up, the Andino, gaule (Chile) and Bolivia Railway at its highest point. But Switzerland holds a world's record in the matter of electrification that no other country can challenge. Counting lines of all gauges, Switzerland has electrified 4,284 kilometres of railway, or 55.1 per cent. of its total track.

Compare World To Cigarette Soap Bubble

Famous British Scientist Says It Is Most Surprising

The universe in which we live was likened to a fragile soap bubble by the James Jeans, famous British scientist, in a lecture at London, England.

"It is easy to blow a soap bubble," he said, "but far less easy to keep it in existence more than a minute or two—after that it is apt suddenly to burst and disappear. I hope I shall not irritate you too much if I say that it has been discovered quite recently that the universe is something like that. As soon as the universe enters into existence it started swelling and must go on expanding."

If the calculations of many astronomers as to the speed of nebulae receding is correct, he said, the universe must be expanding—"I might almost say, exploding—at a really terrific rate."

"The material universe," he continued, "appears to be passing away like a bubble that's left, dissolving into nothingness before the light of day."

Start Of Aviation Warfare

First Allied Aviator Experimented For Shooting At Enemy

The first allied aviator to shoot at a German plane was severely repulsed by a British general, Captain R. War Cock, World War aviator and director of the Curlew-Wright Flying School at Indianapolis said.

"Aviators were used only for observation purposes at first, and when enemy planes passed each other they waved their hands or made signs to indicate the war wasn't a personal matter with them," Captain Cock said.

"One of the British aviators took his revolver along with him on a flight one day and took a pot-shot at a German. He was called on the carpet by a general and warned that such unprofessional conduct would not be tolerated."

"Other allied aviators took guns along with them, however, and finally one of them killed a German with a machine gun. That started aviation warfare."

Man's Shaping

Recent British, advertising man, cites a theory that depression usually last eighteen months, a period otherwise measured by the average man's possession of two suits of clothes. When both yards of pants wear out hard times end. Here's hoping there are not too many two-piece suits in circulation!

LOSE FAT THIS WAY

It's easier than you think it is to lose weight. You just have to get out and walk a mile or so every day.

If you will take half a teaspoon of Kraschen salts in a glass of hot water every morning for 30 days—You will feel as good as a champion, and the extra fat will be in a good way of being removed from your body.

Why will Kraschen salts make this great change for the better in you? It is natural for you to ask.

Because Kraschen is a kind of the old-fashioned salts. Nature says your body must have to keep every organ, gland and nerve in the body constantly healthy.

While you are taking this you will be getting in energy—in endurance—in action. Your skin will grow clearer, and your eyes will sparkle with the good health that Kraschen brings. The old arm chair won't hold you any more—you'll want to be up and doing—you'll enjoy work and active recreation and you'll sleep like a top. You'll live fit, and probably live years longer.

Little Babe For This Week

Our Lord and Master When He departed left us in this world as our last legacy on earth, the poor. These we have always with us; and we are not. Our hearts would give us heart as we see the poor.

The poor are always with us. The warplanes come to us continually, and they do not come by chance. God sends them. And as they come, with their white faces and their poor, smiling feet, they are our judges. Not merely by whether we give, but by how we give, and by what we give, they judge us. Thank God! There are some men and women, full of the power of the gospel, who cannot rest satisfied till they have opened their very hearts, and given the poor everything that is the only thing which is really their own—their selves, their faith, their energy, their hope of God.—Phillips Brooks.

U.F.A. Convention at Stony

Stony Plain is to be the meeting place of a convention of the United Farmers of Alberta. The convention will be held in Mason Hall, and has been called by Mr. W. Broadstock, Pres. of Stony Plain Provincial Constituency Political Ass'n of the U. F. A.

One of the matters to come before the convention will be a resolution from Winterburn Local, dealing with the crisis grain farmers find themselves up against at the present time, and offering a solution which should be acceptable to the Government and others concerned.

This resolution will be spoken to by Mr. Geo. Bevington, the well known authority on banking.

Delegates will be present from all the Locals in Stony Plain constituency, as other matters are to be dealt with beside that indicated.

Mr. Donald Macdonald, member-elect for Stony Plain constituency, has signified his intention to be present; and there is the possibility of a member of Mr. Brownlee's Cabinet being present.

Hansen's Corners

One of the biggest crowds that ever turned out to a concert was at Hansen's Corners—237 people, men, women and children, turned out to the Xmas tree and concert put on by our teacher, Miss Monk.

The hunting season being all over, nearly all the sports have arrived home. One hunter was lost in the jungle for three days; but is expected to recover.

Work will shortly be started on the implement and machine shed to be built at Carvel by a local contractor and builder.

Hansen's Corners U. F. A. Local held their annual meeting, with Scotty Erickson in the chair. The members intend putting on a concert and variety show in the near future which will awe astonish the natives hereabouts.

Pioneers' Annual Banquet

With buffalo meat, pemmican and other pioneer dishes to form part of the menu, the annual banquet of the Alberta Oldtimers' Ass'n in the form of a banquet and dance will be held at the Macdonald hotel on Wed. next, Jan. 14. Last year 600 oldtimers and their relatives attended the annual banquet and dance; and even a greater number are expected to attend the coming celebration.

Farmers' Short Course

Plans are just about completed for a real interesting time at the annual Agricultural Short Course to be held next week at the University of Alberta, with the cooperation of the Dept. of Agriculture and the various seed growers organizations who are holding their annual meetings at Verity—the lectures given to them being part of the Short Course program. This is the farmers' and home-makers' week at the University of Alberta, and every effort will be put forth to make it an enjoyable and profitable one.

World's Wheat Champion Given World Tour

WINNER of the world's wheat championship at Chicago's International Livestock Fair for the second time, Norman Trelle, Winnipeg, from River District, has been singularly honored by E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, at whose invitation he will make a trip around the world. Trelle, though dwarfed at his outstanding career, attained with hard red spring, was even more pleased with the third he was awarded for hard red winter, which, he maintains, demonstrates the feasibility of raising it in Western Canada and also that he has moved the winter wheat line just 100 miles further north. Lower shows Mr. Trelle and Mr. Beatty.
